Santa speaks up - his thoughts on E-Commerce

With Christmas fast approaching Total Interiors were lucky enough to speak with Santa as he prepares for his busiest time of the year. We dive in deeper than a deep-filled mince pie to see what his thoughts are on e-commerce warehouses and online shopping platforms.

Thanks for meeting with us today, Santa, you must be very busy on the lead-up to Christmas?

Thank you for having me, it's quite busy up in the north pole. We spend the whole year preparing for one day and now we are on the last reindeer legs of it.

It sounds exciting, how do you manage?

The elves help out a lot that's for sure.

I bet they do, so tell me Santa, where do you store all of those presents?

Well with a little bit of magic, and a lot of pallet racking, we can store millions of things in our warehouse in the north pole.

What do you think of the warehouses we have in the UK?

I think they're brilliant, you don't have access to the magic that I do so the way you all make the most of the space you have is ingenious. All those mezzanine floors and brilliant racking systems.

Would you ever consider outsourcing some of your warehouse needs?

Maybe, the population keeps growing so perhaps if the reindeers want to retire, I'd find another warehouse solution that can ship the presents.

How do you feel about e-commerce and online shopping? Are you threatened at all?

Not in the slightest. You can't have Christmas without Santa! Online shopping is the future and those warehouses and distribution centers are amazing, did you know I bought Mrs. Clause a lovely scarf and perfume at one of those online shops you have. She loved it! Shipping was fast too, takes a lot of know-how to organize a warehouse like that.

Well, that's all we have time for today, Santa, thanks for speaking with Total Interiors we've loved hearing your thoughts.

It's been lovely, I'll send an elf-mail to you about those e-commerce warehouse solutions of yours. It might really help speed things up for us up north.

Even Santa agrees that online shopping and e-commerce are the way forward. You can't beat progress and having the right organization throughout your warehouse can really help drive forwards productivity.
